Dedication

We the class of 1958 dedicate this book to the further expansion of Lowell State Teachers College.

As we have grown in wisdom and knowledge, so has our college grown in size and fame. When we came here as Freshmen in the Fall of 1954, the college consisted of the original Administration Building. A year later we saw the addition of the Arts and Science Building. The recent annexation of the Battle's Estate and Presidents' Hall with the accompanying grounds has extended the college boundaries to the banks of the Merrimack. Paralleling this rapid physical expansion has been Lowell's growth in reputation as an outstanding college in its field.

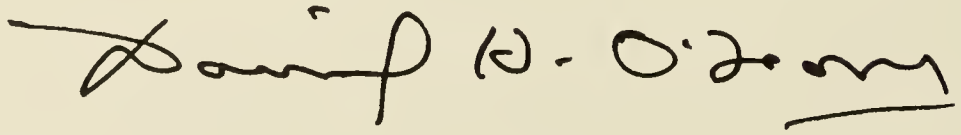
We are proud to have profited by this expansion and have faith that further expansion will place Lowell high among prominent institutions.

DR. DANIEL H. O'LEARY
President
State Teachers College, Lowell

It is with regret that I bid farewell to the Class of 1958. Your theme "Expansion" involves a measure of quality as well as one of quantity. In the four years that you have attended Lowell you have witnessed the modest beginnings of an expansion program here. Our campus and our buildings have both tripled in those years. This may sound well percentagewise, but it only involves growth from six acres to eighteen, from one building to three. More significantly, these four years have seen an expansion and strengthening of the quality of curricula, faculty and educational offerings. Regional as well as national accreditation has been earned.

We have made a modest beginning. We know, however, that it is only a beginning, that the nation that has the schools has the future, that as Horace Mann once wrote "Education alone can conduct us to that enjoyment which is, at once, best in quality and infinite in quantity."

It is our hope that you too will not be satisfied with what you have learned here, that you will add to the education you received from your teachers a continuing education from yourselves, and that you will be as eager to help us in the future as we have been to help you in the past.



President O'Leary addresses the senior class at their Investiture.

Mr. O'Leary and his daughter Nancy chat with some friends at Father's Night.

The versatility of Dr. O'Leary is depicted through the many roles that he plays daily, president, father, and husband.

Dr. O'Leary and his wife speak with Senior mothers, Mrs. William McCarty, Mrs. John Conway, Mrs. James Martin and daughter Florence, at the Mother's Tea.

"Our Procop"

To Dr. Domenic Procopio,

"Thank you" is such a small word to express our gratitude for all you have done. Your guidance has been unique . . . you pushed us through Freshman year, dragged us through the Sophomore slump, sympathized with our Junior blues, and subdued our Senior superiority. Through our triumphs and failures you have been what only you could be, patient, smiling, and ever-ready to give that bit of advice which so often was just the answer to our problem.

We are humble that a man of your wisdom and talent should give so freely of himself to make what we think is the finest class ever to graduate from Lowell. If we are truly so, it is only because of you . . . our "Procop."

DR. DOMENIC R. PROCOPIO

TO THE CLASS OF 1958

In the last few years, expansion on all school levels has been and still is a very serious problem to all associated with education. A partial solution has resulted in more buildings, equipment, administrative personnel, and teachers to handle the growing classes. Such physical expansion must increase to a much greater degree in the immediate future. Thus, the theme of your "Knoll" is a most timely one.

It is my sincere hope that all this evidence stressing the importance of the quantitative elements of expansion does not blind you to the equally important qualitative aspects. In fact, the greater the quantitative needs of the whole, the easier it is to neglect the qualitative needs of the individual. Internal growth within the student must go on as it always has when physical expansion was not so pressing.

For your own development, this means that you must continue your studies on the graduate level, travel widely to encompass the results of the many educational experiments now in progress, and profit from varied educational experiences. The total of these, when integrated within yourselves, will make you more capable of assuming an objective approach to the quantitative factors of expansion. Best of all, your own self-expansion, so to speak, will make you increasingly aware of the special needs of the individual, resulting in your constant efforts to balance the quantitative and qualitative aspects of expansion.

Domenic R. Procopio

Class Hymn

Our torch here kindled by Thee
Offered light to our way.
Graces given so free
Saw us through each day.

Lord, bless this our knoll,
Lord, grant each his goal.

Upon this hallow'ed ground,
Here it was that we found,
Graces abundantly
Granted us by Thee

music: Frank Cagliuso
words: Anne Kilmartin

Class of 1959

The Class of 1959 is energetic, enthusiastic, effervescent, and efficient, but we knew them when they weren't so. As "Freshmen they came here expecting to find a college where they could improve on their knowledge," but they soon learned to play cards in the cafe, ping-pong in the lounge, and sports in the gym. As Sophomores they finally sang-away our banner and outgrew sophomore-itis. "Methods dragged them too, all gay young blades were through," however they survived and now the Seniors will take their own advice and "go home, go home, go home with our degrees, go home, go home. You're the Seniors now, we see!"

The Juniors: Singing for their banner, carrying the ivy for their big sister and brother class, modeling at fashion shows, and entertaining at banquets, the Symphony of the Sea, at concerts, M.E.N.C.'s Brigadoon, and at parties for their little sisters and brothers.

Our little brothers and sisters receive a formal introduction to L.T.C. at the Freshman Reception when they first arrive; then they end the year by singing the praises of their wonderful class at Class Night. In between they learn to acquire a social growth and development, to receive well deserved ovations at Bops Pops, to can the can-can with precision personified, and to appear sweet and demure while they model at fashion shows.

Class of 1960

Our brother and sister class has followed in our illustrious footsteps. They have encounted the battle fields of needs, interests, and abilities and emersed triumphant. "On To Methods" is the cry. Here is a word of advice:
Remember —
Sophomores next of L.T.C.
Next year Juniors you will be
So stick by the Golden Rule
While you are in practice school
Sophomore-itis must be through
Or next Jan. you'll be blue.
Just remember this short ditty
And next year you'll be sitting pretty.

Freshmen make their presence known about the campus, Jerry Cote dribbles down the court, Ed Russo blows cool sounds, and some Freshmen girls receive life-saving awards.

Class of 1961

This year's freshman class is the largest ever to enter Lowell State Teachers College. They are not only large quantitively but also qualitively. These "men and women" have learned to "be specific", give five minute speeches, analize paintings, recognize melodies, and calculate mathematical impossibilities.

Upperclassmen have 'taught' them . . . "all those naughty tricks like cards, and cuts and such; many ways of talking just like . . . 'care' . . . 'rest' and . . . 'too much'."

Freshmen eventually become Seniors, at least that's what we've been told.

Organizations

Student Activity Building

Student Council

Executive officers of the main branch, the Student Government, comprise the Student Council. These officers are elected yearly, from the student body who are members of the Student Government Association, upon payment of an activity fee, which subsidizes all activities, clubs, and functions at the college. The "Council" members are the elected, active representatives of the student body.

The basic purpose of the "Council" is to act as the governing board of the student body. It acts in the best interests of the faculty and students at Lowell, which ultimately will help the State Teachers College at Lowell to retain its standing among the colleges of the nation.

1958 Knoll

The Knoll is an expression of what college life has been like at Lowell for the past four years.

The editors have worked long and hard in their attempt to capture pictorially not only the present day activities but also those past experiences which seemed unforgettable. However in many cases it will be only through the Knoll that we will recall these incidents and acquaintances of our college days.

"And since we'll not see each other again
Because we'll be teaching out in the glen"
We give you for reflection The Knoll.

Pegasus

Lowell Teachers College is proud to have one of the first and finest college literary publications. It was only fitting that the name Pegasus be given to such a magazine since Pegasus, a winged horse of Greek legend, is associated with poetical inspiration. The purpose of the organization is to encourage students to participate in the acts of creative thinking and writing. The material published in Pegasus is written entirely by students of Lowell State Teacher's College, and the creative material ranges from non-fiction and fiction to poetry and art.

Although Pegasus is only in its fourth year, it has already been accepted and acclaimed by all the students. This was clearly proved this year when the student body voted Pegasus a seat on the Council. It is the hope of the organization that in the future it will inspire more and more students to express themselves creatively.

The members of the Campus Star feel that they have one of the finest newspapers in the United States. There was a time when the paper consisted merely of a four page letterpress newssheet written by a few editors. But now it has grown to a four to eight page paper staffed by over forty members. The paper gives its members an opportunity to develop a sense of responsibility, co-operation, and fair play. Students have ample opportunity to learn reporting, layout, and all the other journalistic skills necessary for newspaper work.

The Campus Star is the greatest means of communication between the students and faculty. It serves to remind the students of what is happening within our hallowed walls. It also gives the students a chance to express their opinions on certain matters. It also presents the beliefs and policies of the college when representing the college at publication conventions.

Science Club

The Science Club was formed in 1954 by Miss Audrey Hughes. The object of the club is to give every student an opportunity to investigate any phase of science that is particularly appealing to him or her. The program is planned to include nearly every phase of science that would be interesting to future teachers. Individual projects have been undertaken for which the members have access to the facilities of the new laboratories. The club is open to all students who wish to participate actively.

This year's Science Club, under the guidance of Miss Patricia Gehrt, is working towards its ultimate goal: Science For Everyone. This year's group has added another rung to the ladder of success. They have had numerous films and guest speakers and three of our own L.T.C. Juniors gave a demonstration on "How high is up?"

Drama Club

Since we first cast our beanied shadows on these fair halls, we have seen the Drama Club grow in achievement and estime. We remember the first production in the new theatre – "Night Must Fall"; the triumph of "Blithe Spirit", which was so well received that their next presentation, "Cradle Song" was under the auspices of the Lowell Moses Greely Parker Lecture Fund.

This year the members are busily adapting themselves to the mise enscene. Professor Kansanniva, the advisor, has given much of his time in demonstrations on make-up, lighting, basic stage movement, and scenery. These have been a great aid to the Club in their annual Spring productions in cooperation with the M.E.N.C. This year the Drama Club and the M.E.N.C. are presenting "Finian's Rainbow", a Broadway musical.

Concert Choir

The students of Lowell Teachers College have enjoyed the usual musical treats this year. The Concert Choir has provided an inspiring background of music at many functions at the college. It has also displayed heart warming performances at many conventions.

Real soul rendering music is a rare commodity these days, but the L.T.C. Concert Choir has made it a precious part of college life. Handel's "Messiah", one of the favorite selections, is just an example of the type of music rendered.

Lovers of good music will be interested to know that the Choir performs equally well both accompanied and acappella, as they demonstrated at the Christmas Assembly, when, dressed in grey robes and crimson collars, they sang traditional Christmas Carols and other religious selections.

Largely responsible for the Choir's successful year is its director, Dr. Domenic R. Procopio. And we are indebted to all the members of the Concert Choir for the splendid, faithful work they did to enrich our life.

Dr. Domenic Procopio directs the concert choir when it makes its appearances.

M.E.N.C.

One of the most active organizations on Lowell's campus is Chapter 201 of the Music Educators National Conference. Their main activity each year is the presentation of a musical show, ranging from the very light talent of talent to the musical comedy variety.

Among the musicals the M.E.N.C. has produced are Gilbert and Sullivan's "Iolanthe" and "Ruddigore"; "Brigadoon", and this year's "Finian's Rainbow". These productions have brought astounding public response, and have found many nights "sold out".

The M.E.N.C. looks forward towards the future with thoughts of producing more and more spectacular Broadway musicals.

Iona Fellowship

The Iona Fellowship, an organization open to Protestant students, is held in conjunction with the students of the Lowell Technological Institute and of the Lowell General Hospital. Meetings are held twice a month at a church in Lowell, at which time ministers of local churches are invited to lecture and lead discussion groups. A worship service is included, lead by the president of the organization. Participation in the University of Life is one of the activities of this club.

This year the Iona Fellowship was proud to have its president, Richard Barnes of Lowell Teachers College, chosen for an award at the Brotherhood Banquet. Mr. Barnes, along with Miss Toby Koffman of L.T.I., was awarded the first plaque for outstanding contribution to the advancement of brotherhood.

Newman Club

The Newman Club of Lowell Teachers College and Lowell Tech is one which has really shown growth in the past four years. This organization is a nation-wide one, and serves its purpose by contributing to the spiritual growth of Catholic students. It was only a few years ago that but a handful of students gathered together, now every meeting is attended to capacity.

The Newman Club also provides social pleasures for its members. Each year the organization sponsors dances, lectures, communion breakfasts, and the annual Retreat. It is the hope of the organization, that in this time of dire need of spiritual development, that more and more students will flock together to enjoy the benefits of the organization.

W.R.O.

The Women's Recreational Organization was reorganized in the year 1954 to meet the changing needs and numbers of our current college population. At that time a Constitution was adopted which laid a firm foundation for the success and achievement which the organization has enjoyed since that time. The aim of the organization is to create in its members a high standard of sportsmanship, a permanent interest in physical recreation, and enjoyment for participation in sports.

The recreational program is directed by the W.R.O. Board and Council, which provides and regulates various sports activities. In addition to these many sports activities the program is highlighted by college playdays, dances, and the annual banquet at which sports awards are presented to outstanding members who have fulfilled the requirements athletically or administratively.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Gallagher is given instruction on the proper way to hold a club by a professional in the field of golf. Watching with great interest are several members of the senior class who hope someday to be good golfers.

Miss Anne Kilmartin, President of the W.R.O., displays her talent in the entertainment field at the annual W.R.O. banquet. Watching with amusement are Joanna Flynn, Head of Ping Pong, and Anne Barrett.

Each year the W.R.O. chooses its outstanding members and presents them with awards at the annual banquet. Posing proudly are some members who have achieved awards.

Faculty members and students enjoy themselves at the annual banquet, Symphony of the Sea, which was extremely well attended.

M.A.A.

The Men's Athletic Association has been in existence at the college for five years. It offers the men a chance to participate in both an intramural and an intercollegiate sports program. The club sponsors many activities including basketball, baseball, volleyball, football, badminton, track, boxing, wrestling and also ping-pong and gymnastics. The association also offers a good social program which includes a W.R.O.-MAA Dance, Sports Night, and the men's stag. This is a growing and assuming club on the campus.

"Watch it now!"

The L.T.C. Basketball team has taken a spurt upwards in the last four years. Although the team has had a run of bad luck this year it was not attributed to bad playing but to the fact that they were harrassed by injuries throughout the season. The success of the team may be credited to not only expert teamwork but also to the excellent coaching of Walter "Cris" Copley.

Baseball

L.T.C. is both proud and pleased with the first New England Teachers College Conference Championship won by a Lowell team. Ably captained by Ray Masse, '57, the team won the championship with a spotless record of nine wins, no defeats.

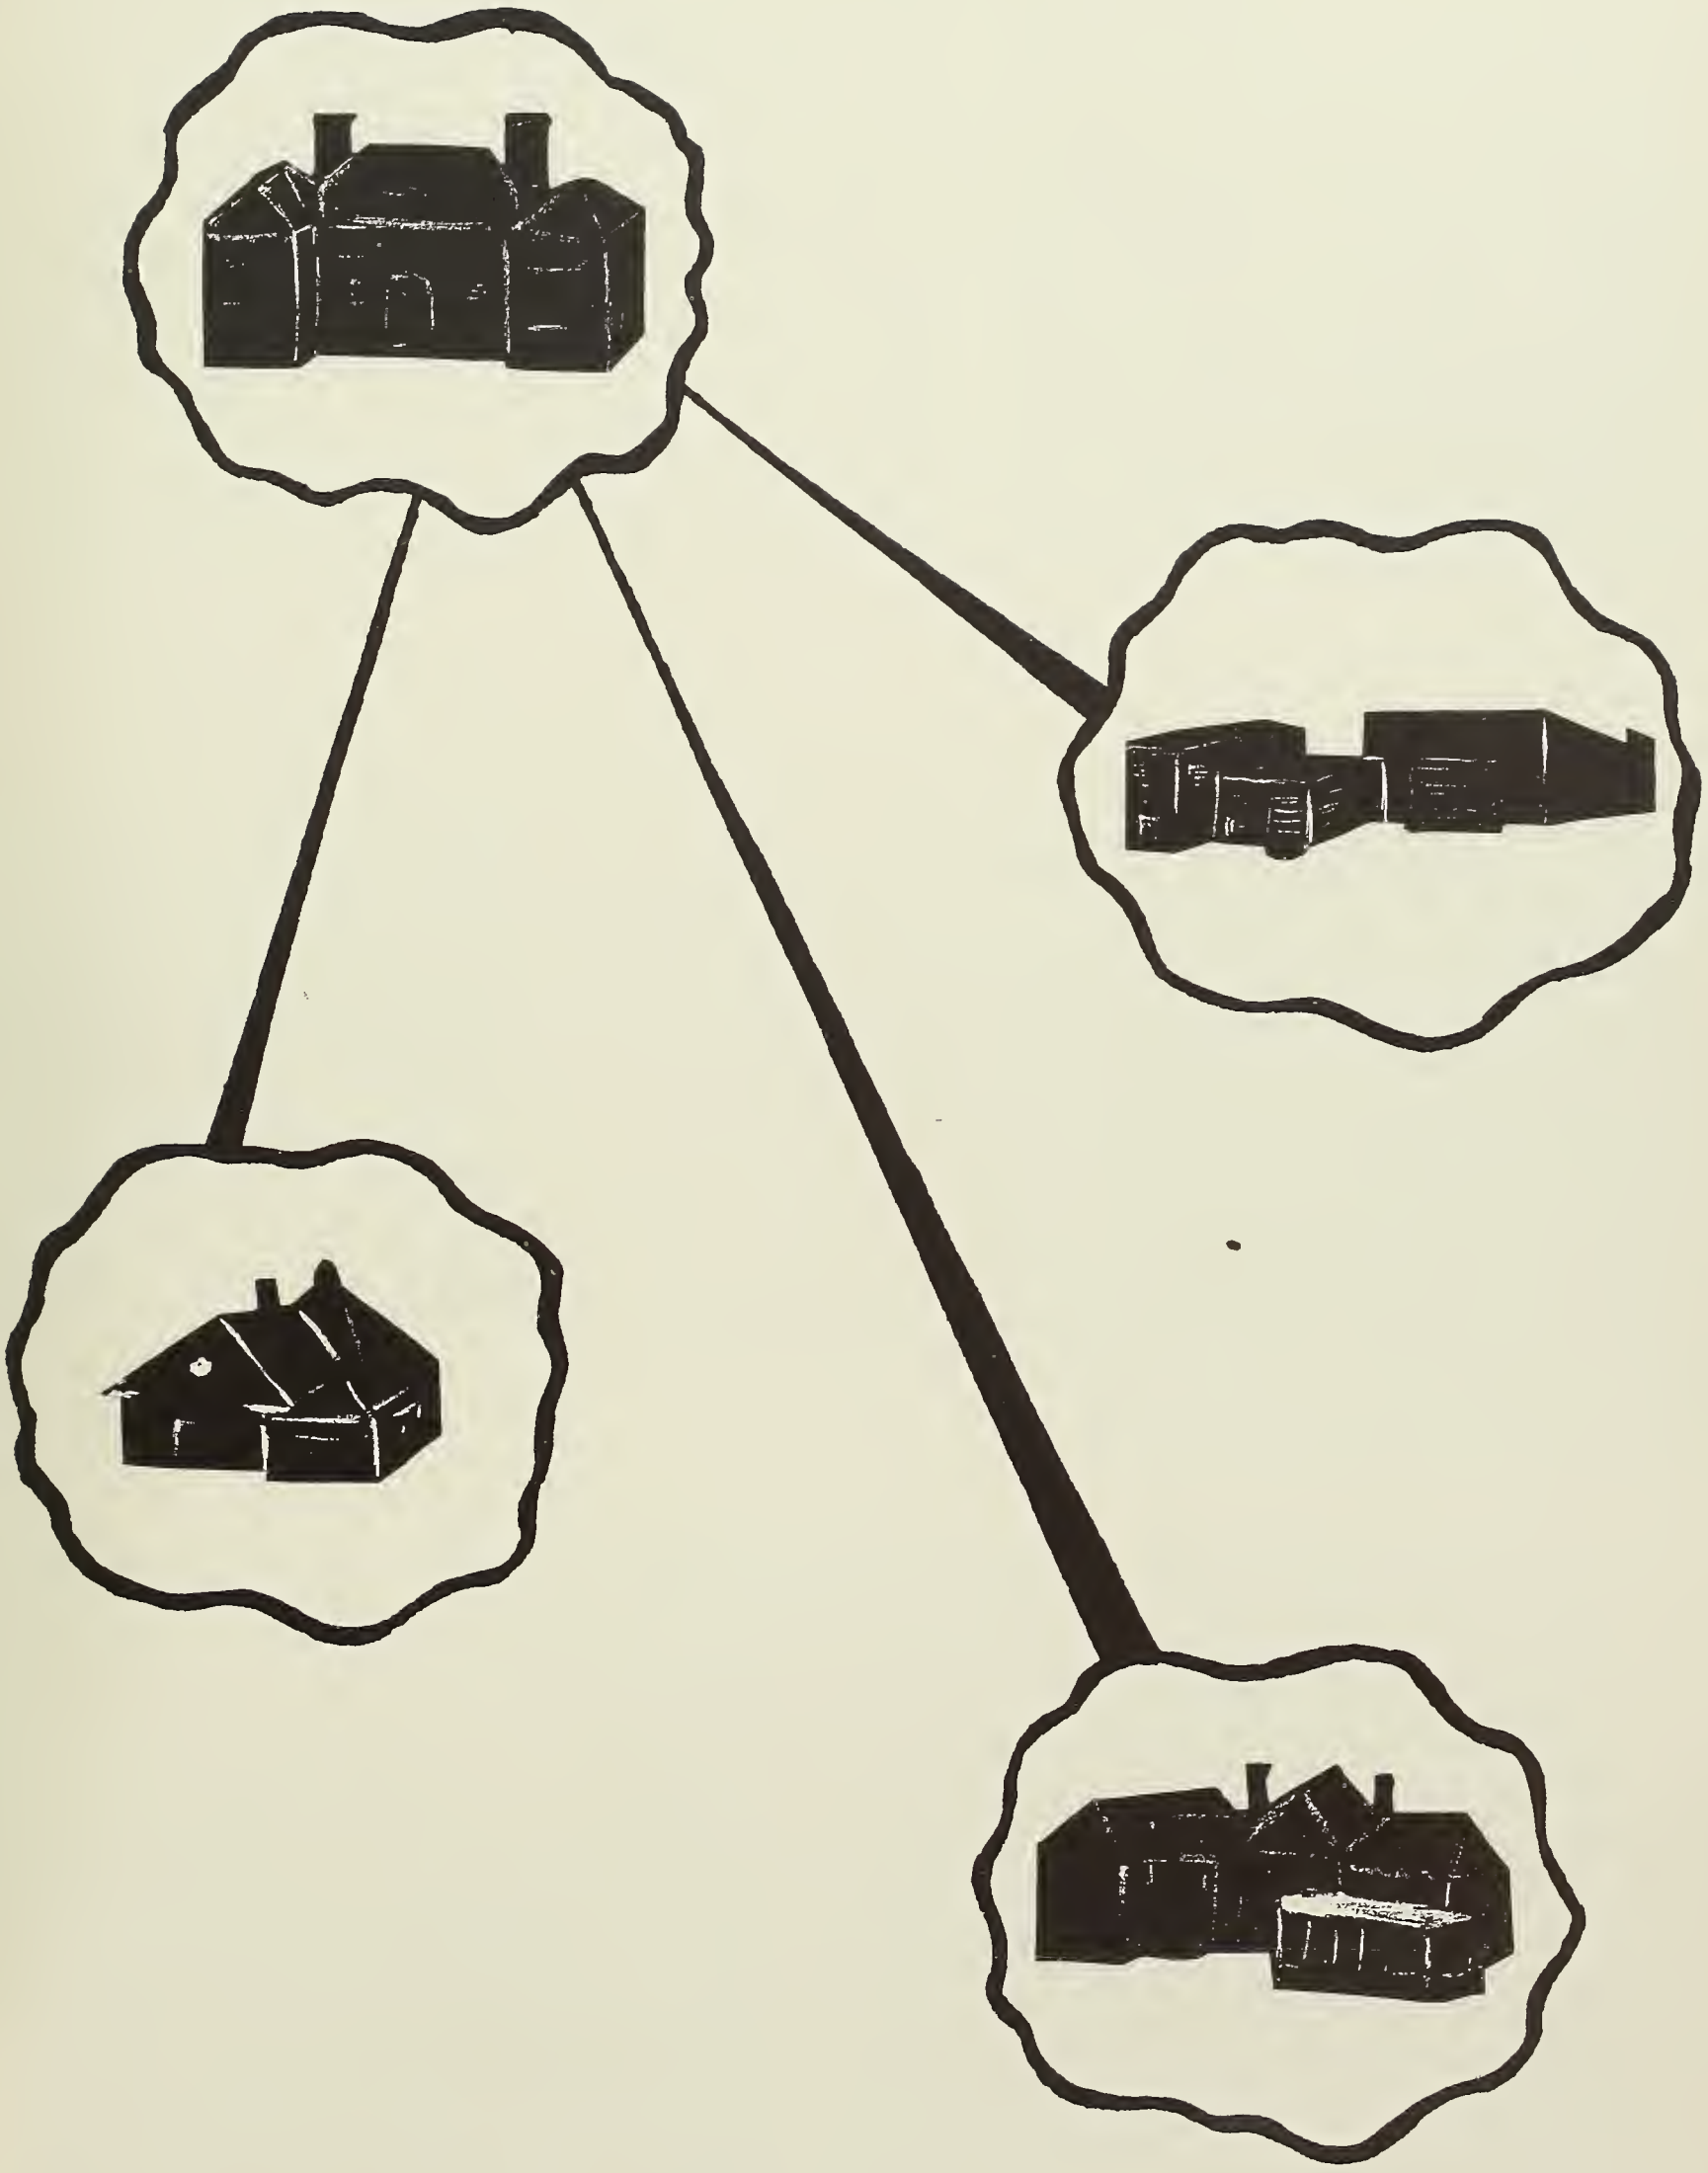
Lowell has been in the New England Teachers College Conference for only three years and in that short time has risen from the bottom to the top of the league.

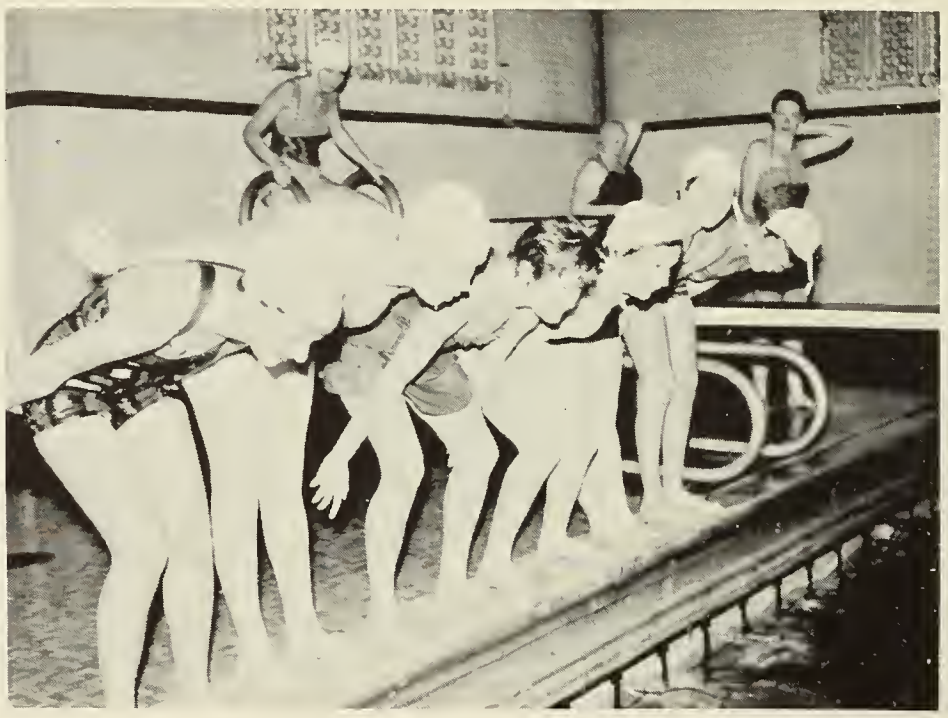
The team feels deeply indebted to our Athletic Director and Coach, Jim Ciszek, for his help in developing in them a spirit of cooperation, teamwork, fair play and good sportsmanship as well as the training in baseball skills.

L.T.C. is looking forward to another good season in 1958. This year's team will be captained by Paul Sheehy. All home games will be played at Hadley Field.

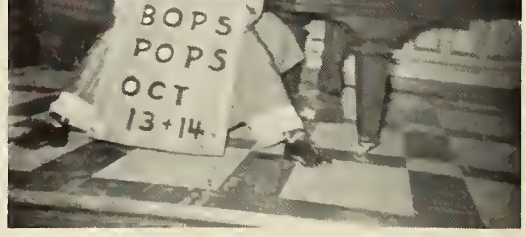
Paul Sheehy and friend discuss possible plays that can be used. The thinkers of this world can be found in the strangest places, even on the bench of the L.S.T.C. games.

Class History





Marilyn Harrison and Gerry Stanton demonstrate the proper way to bow to a Junior, Freshmen learn how to swim, a lowly Freshman receives her initiation beanie from a MIGHTY JUNIOR, entertainment rendered at our first Bops Pops, Gerry (Todd) Stanton studies diligently for those nightmare freshmen classes, whenever we think of freshman math we think of Miss Hughes.



When the class of '58 stormed the quiet campus at L.T.C. that September day (was it only four years ago?) the old administration building fairly shook on its foundations. Although it was only Orientation week, the word spread quickly among the few upper-classmen present that here was a bunch of live wires, the likes of which L.T.C. had never seen. We breezed (?) through a battery of tests to appear fresh and raring-to-go at the Orientation week party. It was at that time that the upper-classmen were given a sample of our talent in the form of Anne Gerry and Theresa McGuire's lovely voices, Kay McQuade's expert dancing, and Lois Murphy's startling impersonations. Sitting around the now-so-familiar cafe singing the traditional college songs, we wondered what lie ahead on the endless road that stretched before us.

Once school was in session, the Juniors arrived, determined to subdue our enthusiasm. At initiation we were told that Hell Week which we had so eagerly (?) anticipated had been changed to Help Week. And so, next day with beanies on our heads and mops in our hands we pitched in to clean everything in sight. What if we were seen slouching in parked cars far from the eyes of "Mighty Juniors". The law demands that everyone have a lunch hour. And besides if we recited the loyalty pledge once more we would be seeing it in our sleep. But it was all a part of college life.

Enjoying a delicious luncheon are Patricia Carey, Marjorie Crossman and June Travers.

Dr. O'Leary addresses the assembly in the old auditorium, which is now the college library.

Talented Anne Gerry, Pauline Jeunesse, and Brenda Martin rehearse the dance steps which they will eventually display to an audience.

A celebration in the naughty pine room.

Mal, Debbie, Mo, and B. J., enjoy a delicious luncheon.

Soon we joined in school activities with all our reputed gusto. The night of the annual Bops Pops we amazed the school when we proved that we were as talented as we were crazy. Remember our field trip to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts? Shivering, we stood outside that chilly morning wondering what treasures lay behind those massive doors and little dreaming they were not to open to us. How could Mr. Malloy have known that the museum is not open on Mondays?

Our reputation as the most party going class ever to hit Lowell was strengthened at every opportunity, for we celebrated everything from winning a basketball game to losing one, and from Columbus Day to warning day. Though there's nary a Swede among us we became known for our Smorgasbords which were of such original nature that even the Swedes couldn't recognize them. If we ever stopped in our merry-making to reflect, it was only to vow that we would never become as serious and dull as the upper classmen. And we feel that to this day we have kept that vow, at least in our leisure time.

Pert, little Mrs. Anne Gerry captures her audience with My Funny Valentine.

Just when people were beginning to suspect we didn't have any, we used our good judgement and elected Dr. Procopio our Class Advisor; Joe Sexton, President; Al Forest, Vice President; Barbara Krysiak, Secretary; and Gerry Brunelle, Treasurer.

Upperclassmen were plainly skeptical when they saw our poster advertising THE IRISH JIG, but quickly swallowed their words when they saw half of Tech there. Our first social function had been a success and our prestige rose.

Spring came and found the freshmen spending every spare and lunch hour basking in the sun at Crystal Lake, the girls modeling their glamorous green gym togs. Our efforts were well rewarded when we displayed golden tans at the Student Council dance. There others discovered what we already knew, that our class had more than its share of feminine beauties, for Brenda Martin was the reigning queen of the affair.

TOP RIGHT: Anne Seminatore, Maureen Burke, Debbie McCarty, and Millie Leonard pose for us on Class Day. BELOW: Well if it isn't Betty Haggerty drinking up the salt air.

That year the freshman M.A.A. members chose Joan Cunha as their candidate for campus queen. Had the contest been based on moral support Joannie would have won, but, alas, money is not one of our virtues.

We were very proud that year to be among the first classes to attend functions in the new Little Theater. The first performance to be held was Iolanthe, and our own Gerry Brunelle helped to make it a success. Following this was the Drama Clubs' production of Night Must Fall in which Florence Blades took part. Our class was just busting out with talent.

Still vivid in memory is the Frosh-Junior party at Hampton Beach at which the gruelling week of finals was promptly forgotten. Though it was hardly the day for a beach party, the rain and cold failed to dampen our spirits. The perfect ending was a weinee roast under the star-lit sky at Rye Beach.

Class day marked the end of our first year at Lowell and it was a day of new triumph for us. Although we failed to win the coveted singing banner from the seniors, we said farewell with a promise to claim the banner the next year.

We returned to Lowell in September, as Sophomores, a drastically smaller and somewhat somber class, determined to remain the same in size for the remaining three years.

Time flew by, highlighted by a series of memorable events. The first of these was a geography trip to Babson Institute and Logan Airport with Professor Knowles. Who can ever forget the spaghetti supper, cooked and served by Master-Chef Doc Procop? That fall we were privileged to serve as host for our sister class at its Senior Investiture, dreaming of the day when we, too, would don caps and gowns.

Toward spring the school was permeated with the nostalgic aura of a parisienne holiday, as strains of chansons de Paris floated through the building. This was just a hint of the continental atmosphere which was to prevail at our "Under Paris Skies" dance. Our plain gymnasium was transformed into a romantic French cafe which would have made the Moulin Rouge look drab in comparison.

Spring was at its height and so was our Sophomorites as we unwillingly dragged our bodies to classes . Nights were sparked by the traditional Mother's Tea, Student Council Dance, and a professional performance of Ruddigore by the M.E.N.C. Shortly afterwards the Drama Club again presented an outstanding performance, in the form of Noel Coward's Blithe Spirit.

Versatility

The night we won the banner.

Once more our men chose a promising candidate for Campus Queen. Though our hopes were high our funds were low for Gerry Todd Stanton.

Somehow we managed to plod doggedly through finals to arrive at Class Night with all expectations of attaining the banner. True to our promise we came through, as one after the other the class of '58 sang a winning song.

Junior year came all too soon. Our closely knit group was split, half of us plunging immediately into methods and the other half broadening their backgrounds with electives. The year slipped quickly by and we often stopped at our typing, as the first rays of dawn shone over the hills, to remember the carefree days of our freshman and sophomore years.

Although we had neither the time nor a reason to celebrate at parties, we gladly pushed all studies aside for the Junior Prom. The Class of '58 will long remember that glittering evening spent dining and dancing at the Sherry Biltmore.

Enjoying themselves at the Spring Formal are Rita Lombard, Connie Sweeney, Mary Reusch and friends. All ready for the Junior Prom and looking very lovely are Beverly Peloian, Joan Abodeely, and Mary Elizabeth Gallagher. Bill Terris and Florence Blades take time out for a rest between the whirl of dances.

Jolly, Jolly, Juniors

TOP: Charlie and Queena, Joannie and Dick, Liz and Dave take a moment to pose prettily for the camera man. ABOVE: "Well look what we have here, if it isn't Kay McQuade and Sally Young in their chosen profession." RIGHT: Rita DiMariano and her reading group discuss the actions of Dick and Jane.

The first of the year came, bringing the unsuitable exams. The block of methods loomed large before some, while the other half faced their first teaching experiences. Unwillingly we learned the meaning of the word professional as the girls sadly put away their wool socks and sneakers, and the men said good-bye to plaid sport shirts. Theory was put into practice and the serious expressions we had once scorned were firmly upon our faces as we realized the responsibility of our position.

In vain we supported Sally Young as our candidate for M.A.A. Queen proving once more that though we were the most enthusiastic class in the school we were not the richest.

Our disappointment at relinquishing the banner at Class Day was diminished by the satisfaction we felt at having completed a year of hard work.

BELOW are more members of that class, Bert Hentz, Billy Hentz, and Lorinda LaBrie.

Seniors!! We could hardly believe that we were deserving of the name, yet looking back over three years to the picture of carefree "green" freshmen we had once been, we realized we had very right to assume the title. Still the traditional robes we donned for our Investiture Exercises felt strange. It wasn't until the program was over that we were fully aware of their meaning, but now were full fledged SENIORS.

Another change had occurred in our class over the summer months, many of the girls had changed their last names and to top it all off we will have the largest percentage of the Class of 1978 whose parents were members of our class.

The annual Bops Pops was again held and as usual the senior class was well represented. Our own 'little mother', Lois Murphy, practically brought the house down with her rendition of "Waitin for Your Phonecall". Jerry Brunelle sang out with gusto to thrill the hearts of everyone.

Finally the last lap of the journey was before us as we entered the second semester. June 8th was looming before us as we made plans for Senior Week, Class Day and finally the big moment, our graduation. We see in review three and a half years of laughter and tears, of fun and work. Perhaps it is because we have been an unusually close group that these experiences are more cherished. You can be sure that we will make our future years successful as only the class of 1958 can, because we are "the bestest in the school".

Pat and Dick Farrell along with Edward Barrett and his date enjoy an evening of dancing.
